EXPLOSION.

A Great Oil Tank Blown Up at Newtown Creek.

One Workman Badly Injured and One Burned to Death.

Greenpoint and Long Island City Startled by the Report.

A terrific explosion startled Greenpoint and Long Island City shortly before 10 o'clock this morning. Then a great column of flame shot skyward.

One of the great tanks at the Kings County Oil Works, at Kingsland avenue and Newtown Creek, had blown up, and the scattered oil had started a conflagration.

At almost the same instant the fire alarm signals rang out and the engines were rattling towards the fire. Then came an alarm for ambulances, and a report spread around that a large number of workmen employed in the works were injured, and that some of them might die.

Hundreds of people flocked to the scene, but a squad of policemen from Long Island City were there, too, and formed a fire line. They had bard work to keep back the crowd.

The flames raged fiercely and the firemen worked like beavers to keep the fire from spreading. They were aided by the fire-boat Seth Low, which had been promptly sum-company.

Immediately after the explosion Olsen, who had been buried to some distance by the blowing out of the head of the retort, and covered with a spray of blazing oil, was picked up seriously burned about the face

An ambulance carried him to the St. Catherine Hospital. Kemetsche had been blistered slightly and his beared singed, and Naher was not hurt at Anderson, however, was missing, and it was believed that he had been buried beneath the ruins. Just before noon, after the fire had been brought under control and the firemen were able to approach the big pile of debris, Anderson's remains were found. At first they dragged out the charred and blackened trunk, both the head and legs missing. These were afterwards recovered from the ruins, and all were tied up in a blanket together and placed in a small shed adjoining the still.

The position in which the body was found indicates that Anderson tried to escape from the lower end of the shed, but was overtaken by the biazing oil just as he reached still No. 6, in front of which his body was found. He was employed as a "miser," is married and is said to have several children.

The cause of the explosion was the overheating of the retort, and the responsibility is placed upon the four workmen who had it in charge. Kometsche was the fireman.

A TRIAL FOR GOEPFERT.

Rumor Said That It Would Occur at the

It was rumored this morning that Oarsman Goepfert, who was recently expelled from the Metropolitan Club, would be tried before a committee of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen at the Gilsey House.

The clerks in the hotel were not aware that there was to be such an affair, but said meetings were frequently held in the house without their receiving notification and that without their receiving notification and that the committee might come at any time.
Goepfert was to row in company with Pilkington, and the rair were considered invincible. Considerable money was bet on them, but before the race was rowed Pilkington charged Goepfert with laving sold out.
The accused returned to this city, where he was subsequently expended by the Metropole was subsequently expelled by the Metropoli-

SCOTT'S EMULSION of Pure Cod

Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is a combination of two of the most valuable remedies in existence for the cure of Consumption and all Wasting Conditions; is more generally recommended and used by Physicians than any known remedy; it gives most satisfactory results, and tones up the system; and when the Consumptive has wasted away and loses hope, the Emulsion will speedily check the ravages of this terrible disease, and restore the sufferer to good health and happiness. This is equally true in regard to Rickets in Children, or Marasmus and Anæmia in Adults, and all impoverished conditions of the blood; and especially desirable for Colds and Chronic Coughs, as it will cure them more quickly than ordinary Specifics used, Palatable as milk.
